| 1      | What's your go-to strategy for building rapport with students from diverse backgrounds, especially in the first few weeks of school? | My primary strategy is to be consistently visible, approachable, and genuinely curious. I'll learn names quickly, use icebreaker activities that highlight individual strengths and interests, and actively solicit student input on classroom norms and expectations. Creating a safe and inclusive environment where everyone feels seen and valued is paramount.                                                     |

I then implemented a clear behavior plan with specific expectations and consequences, focusing on positive reinforcement for desired behaviors. Consistent follow-through and open communication with the student and their family were key to improvement. |
